 "Colonel Greatheart is a powerful story."—London Daily Telegraph.
 "A story of rare strength and distinction is 'Colonel Greatheart.'"—London Observer.

WM. LYON PHELPS, Professor of English Literature at Yale University, says:

SMITH HEIRS WIN.

Decree Is Handed Down in Famous Hotel Case.

ASHESVILLE, N. C., November 24.—Judge Peebles has handed down his decree in the long pending Smith estate, and famous unfinished concrete hotel case. The decree is unqualifiedly in favor of the Smith heirs, and gives no rights whatever to those who had ordered notes of former Commissioner Miller, on which $20,000 was raised by him. It allows other creditors to share only after the Smith heirs have been paid the sum of $25,000, which was found to be the value of the bare hotel site, on which the huge unfinished structure now rears its head.

The sum of $20,000 was realized from the sale of Smith's estate land, and which was put into the construction of the hotel. In effect, the Smith heirs must be paid $55,295, out of the proceeds of the hotel before the large number of creditors can realize anything. The court finds that the uncompleted hotel and land is worth $35,000, and on which no one has any statutory lien.

The court directs Commissioner Whitton to sell the hotel property and also directs him to bring suit against former Commissioner Miller, unless a balance of $5,275 against him is paid in ninety-five days.

TRANSFERRED AFFECTIONS.

Mother Is Supplanted and Police Court Case Follows.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
 LYNCHBURG, VA., November 24.—A case which had a sensational turn, and yet turned out to be a temper in a teapot, was tried before Mayor Smith in the Police Court this morning, when E. Cook, a tinner, was arraigned on the charge of trespassing upon the premises of Mrs. Lucy B. Webber, a widow who lives on Church Street, near Thirtieth Street, and for attempting to abduct Elizabeth, the pretty daughter of the prosecutrix. The case wound up by the defendant being discharged after a warning to remain away from the young lady and to respect her mother's wish as to remaining away from her.

It was apparent that the trouble was due to the fact that Cook had paid attention to the mother, but transferred them to the comely and buxom daughter.

Miss Elizabeth Webber, the innocent cause of the whole trouble, testified that everything Cook had stated at home Saturday night about marrying her, Whitehead, representing the do-
